The L.I.F.E. System works by reducing the stresses on a body at the electro-magnetic level.

Stress begins by producing an alarm response in the body, which if not managed by the body's own natural resources, can lead to development of an adaptation response. If stress is not resolved, symptoms appear. Imbalances usually begin at the cell level, progress to tissue and organ level, and may involve whole systems.

Stress may result from a large number of factors including, but not limited to:

- Thoughts of self-doubt that block perceptual awareness
- Nutritional deficiencies
- Inadequate intake of water or oxygen
- Toxic stress factors such as fungus, bacteria, viruses and chemical agents
- The presence of heavy metals
- Prescription drugs or other synthetic compounds
- Geopathic stressors such as parasites or allergens
- Genetic predisposition
- Bio-field contamination from radiation, microwaves, diverse frequencies
- Lifestyle preferences and practices
- Emotional baggage
